Newell as the director of that service.

Mr. Ballinger would not discuss this phase in any way. It is known, how-ever, that the secretary has long regarded Mr. Newell us inimical to his plans for the reclamation service. It is the Mr. Ballinger, in turn, has publicly stated that he did not regard Mr. Newell as or indirectly on the Ballinger-Pinchot the man for the place occupied by him. Just when and how Mr. Newell is go ing could not be learned.

Secretary Ballinger left for Washington tonight. He will remain there a few days and then start on a long trip through the west, during which he will visit a number of Indian reserves and probably look over some of the reclamation projects now under way. His trip, including a brief rest at his home in Seattle, will occupy from six weeks to two months.

When Secretary Ballinger alighted from the train here this morning he was not by the usual crop of resignation rumors. "I am not a quitter," he said, "and never have been. I did not bring a resignation with me and will not leave one." After he had lunched and conferred with the president, Mr. Ballinger was told of a later rumor that he would resign after the special congressional investigation committee had made its report. The only suggestion of resignation that came in reply was in the secretary's smile.

The recent withdrawals of water pow-or sites, phosphate and petroleum lands by the president, covering more than $1,000,000 acres in various states and the two territories, were discussed with the president by Secretary Ballinger.

"Dealing with these lands," said the secretary, "we will continue the conservation policy in every essential detail. At the same time the president proposes that an opportunity for development shall be given. The first work before us is the proper classification of the lands. This will have to be done by the geological survey and the undertaking is a big one. Once the classification is completed, we will be confronted by the task of getting special legislation through congress for the disposition of the lands on a fair basis. An effort will be made to devise permanent protection of the banks of the Colorado and the Laguna dam.

In addition to Secretary Ballinger, the president had as callers this afternoon Paymaster General Whipple of the army, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop and Representative John Dwight of New York, the Republican "whip" of the house.

WIDOW OF VETERAN MINSTREL CHIEF DIES

NEW YORK July 5.—Elisa, the widow of Jack Haverly, in his day chief of all the minstrel men, is dead in a private sanitarium. Elght weeks ago she underwent an operation for which she never recovered. She is survived by a stepdaughter.

In a little uptown store, where she sold materials used by actors, Mrs. Haverly had fought for existence with a smiling persistence since her husband's death six years ago. The actor folk revered Colonel Haverly and they held two benefits for the widow, one in this city and the other in Chicago. But neither of them was successful. At one time Colonel Jack owned fourteen theatres and twenty-three road companies and had started on their careers such men as Daniel Frohman. George Evans and Primrose and West but those were in the palmy days, and when the colonel died his wife and daughter found that they had to make their own living.

Mrs. Haverly was 60 years old.

Poindexter are from the same Scattle district.

Leaving Oyster Bay after the conference, Mr. Poindexter said:

"I found Roosevelt unchanged. He and I have worked together always and he assured me that we always will work together. I am delighted with the result of the visit."

Colonel Roosevelt looked happy when he received the interviewers a little later. He was dressed in the crush riding suit which he wears most of the time he is at home. Seated in his library, he spoke of his talk with Mr. Poindexter in a manner that showed plainly the pleasure the meeting had given him. This is what he said:

That was all the colonel wanted to have put in quotation marks. What he said otherwise made it rather clear be had given assurances to Mr. Poindexter that he would support him in his attempt to unseat Senator Piles.

Coincidentally, Secretary Ballinger and President Taft held a conference at Beverly today in which they discussed the reclamation service. There Mr. Ballinger denied with emphasis the rumor that he was to resign.

"I am not a quitter and never have been," he said.

Miles Poindexter is an out and out insurgent elected by the people of Washington on a radical platform. He has been a firm supporter of Roosevelt policies and especially as they relate to conservation. They were the basis of his platform when he ran for congress. He arrived at Oyster Bay on the noon train and was recognized at once as an insurgent. For he had the same pleased smile that shone of the faces of Senator Bristow and Representatives Murdock and Madison of Kansas, when they came here last Saturday.

The insurgents arrived smiling but excited. Presently they returned from Sammore Hill, with the smile still there, but with the excitement replaced by placid confidence. It was so with the Washington man. At luncheon they discussed the Ballinger-Pinchot occurrence in detail in the course of their talk on the political status of the northwest.

While the general opinion here is that Colonel Roosevelt is still "feeling his way," as regards his ultimate attitude toward the Taft administration, his stand to interviewers when Mr. Poindexter had gone.

Robert Bacon, embassador to France, and Gilson Gardner, a magazine writer, were the other guests at luncheon at Sagamore Hill today.
The colonel and the embassador fought it out today on the tennis court at Sagamore Hill as they used to do on the White House court. The colonel is going to his editorial offices in New York in the ymorning and will return to his home late in the day.

Ballinger Doubtful. Ballinger Doubtful.

PROVIDENCE, R. L. July 5.—Secretary Ballinger, interviewed while passing through this city for Washington tonight, declared he did not believe Theodore Roosevelt would support Miles Poindexter for the senate. He added:

"I don't care anyway, for I'm not in politics. I will tell you this, though: I don't believe the state of Washington will ever send Miles Poindexter to the United states senate."
